WHY DO WE NEED TO LISTEN TO THE UNCONSCIOUS?

“Until you make the unconscious conscious, it will direct your life and you will call it fate.” ~ C.G. Jung

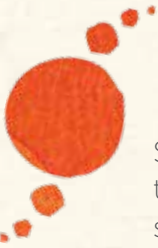

At every moment of our lives, whether we're awake or asleep, there is a process that we are not conscious of, that is beneath the surface, which is termed the unconscious. We are also often not aware that our unconscious not only consists of all that we have suppressed from becoming aware of, but also contains the potential for our development.

In groups that we are a part of, we take on different roles, sometimes consciously, and more often unconsciously, depending on the context. Groups also seem to have processes or dynamics of their own, some visible and some not so apparent. This becomes more evident when groups we are in don't behave according to "plan". Tasks don't get done as planned, people get caught up in a lot of processes that do not focus on the task, and become counterproductive. This leads to frustration, emotional turbulence, break in relationships and delays in task accomplishment.

The path to pursue change or transformation in any situation is always beset with uncertainty. We are often not aware of the deeper processes at work. We do not seem to be willing to recognize that there are unconscious processes at play. We may even wish to ignore them because surfacing these are likely to confront us with realities that we prefer not to know, notwithstanding the cost to ourselves and the organization of this 'not knowing'. Addressing them may lead us to uncomfortable questions such as "how am I behaving in the group? Do I understand how the group is affecting me in my role as leader/change agent? How can I understand my role in the group and hold the space for the group to focus on task?"

Whether we are managers, leaders, consultants or simply a member of a group, it is useful to have a sharper awareness of many aspects of what working in a group entails.

Some of these aspects are at the more conscious level such as the boundaries of task, time, physical space or territory as well as their interconnection with other boundaries such as values, relationships, resources and technology. In the process of managing these boundaries a host of unconscious “below the surface” processes also come into play such as the feelings people project on others (including one’s own feelings) and the implications these have on the way the group functions and the relationships that develop.

There are ways of becoming aware of, understanding and working with unconscious processes provided by pioneers in the psychoanalytic tradition such as Sigmund Freud, Melanie Klein, Carl Jung, and Wilfred Bion, which will be used in the workshop. The tradition of work on the unconscious that is called group relations work is influenced by this as well as other streams such as systems thinking, socio-technical systems, (particularly the work of Eric Trist and A K Rice) as well as socio-analysis (work initiated by Gordon Lawrence and Alastair Bain).

Work on the unconscious and recognition of its impacts however has had an extremely long history and can be seen in thought and philosophy in the Indian sub-continent in the pre-Vedic era, the Upanishads, Buddhist and Jain philosophy and in literature on Yoga over millennia which Gouranga Chattopadhyay has introduced into group relations work.

WHAT IS THIS WORKSHOP ABOUT?

The workshop is a learning event where we offer the opportunity to work with these frameworks in an experiential way as well as engage with some of the concepts. The idea is to learn, derive one’s own insights and apply them to one’s roles in our “back home” situations, both organisational and personal. The workshop will provide an opportunity to enhance the understanding of:

- Unconscious processes in groups and individuals and how they impact each other; &
- Exploration of the implications of the above for one’s roles in back home institutions.

THE PRIMARY TASK OF THE WORKSHOP

By the term primary task, we mean the top most priority task of a system that gives it meaning and purpose; that which has to be engaged with meaningfully for the system to fulfil its objectives.

The primary task of this workshop is to explore and work with unconscious processes in individuals and groups through one's direct experience in the here and now, as well as working with the application of conceptual frameworks.

METHODOLOGY

A range of learning events, such as small study groups, plenaries, review and reflection, social dreaming matrix, concept presentations and discussions, application group and yoga will be used.

For the purpose of honing their ability to apply their learnings, participating members are recommended to come prepared to work on a difficult issue that they are currently facing in any system that they're part of, to which new insights or perspectives generated in the workshop can be applied.

FOR WHOM IS THE WORKSHOP MEANT

This workshop invites as members anyone to whom this task and methodology seems appealing. Past participants have been from development and other not-for-profit sectors, health care systems, trade unions, educational institutions, corporate organisations, students and those with no particular paid working role as well!. All that is required is to have the capacity to wonder at what emerges in the present and not get caught in one's past. This kind of learning also calls upon one's capacity to be in touch with one's feelings in the context of exploring one's experience, instead of neatly labelling them on the basis of the past, which includes cultural prescriptions and proscriptions.

THE STAFF

The staff of the workshop will be in roles such as director, administrator and consultant. Collectively they form the management of the workshop and supervise the boundaries of task, time and territories.
